HOTEL ODERBERGER

The 'Stadtbad Oderberger' was designed in 1898 by architect Ludwig Hoffmann to supply the then rapidly growing district of Prenzlauer Berg with public institutions. In 1986 it was forced to close and remained so until 2012 when extensive renovations began.

In January 2016, the Hotel Oderberger Berlin was opened. The pool area continues to be used as an event location, but since October 17th, 2016 the swimming pool is re-opened for the first time in 30 years.

HISTORY

- 1902 Opening as a "Volksbadeanstalt" or Public Bathhouse
- 1945 The bathhouse survives the war without major damage
- 1986 Closure of the bath due to cracks in the floor
- 1989 A citizens' initiative, founded by Bernd Holtfreter, ensures the preservation of the city bath
- 1994 Artists use the baths for exhibitions
- 2011 Sale of Oderberger Baths to the GLS Language School (Dr. Hans-Dieter und Barbara Jaeschke)
- 2012 Beginning of renovations
- 2016 Re-opening as Hotel Oderberger Berlin with 70 rooms, 2 apartments and 10 seminar rooms
